MARKET LOOKS O. K. FOR SPRING LAMBS

Because of the embargo on eastern shipments of California lambs and the continuation of the very unfavorable conditions during March in Kentucky and Tennessee, the market supply of early spring lambs before June 1 will be very much smaller than usual according to a report made by the United States Department of Agriculture. Those three states furnish most of the spring lambs imported before June 1.

In California range and pasture conditions improved somewhat since March 1. In the northern half of the state they are now fair to very good and in the south half grass is just beginning to grow after the long-delayed rains. Lambs from the northern areas are in very fair condition with a good killing yield, but in the south they will be mostly feeders.

California Surplus
It is estimated that there are approximately 100,000 lambs in the state that would have been sold if 60 per cent of which would have been of killing quality and the rest feeders. Because of the foot-and-mouth quarantine, these will have to find a market, if at all, inside the state. The sheep interests in the state are working with the local packing interests to make possible contracts for the shipment of dressed carcasses to eastern markets. It is estimated that there will be a surplus of between 100,000 and 125,000 of these above local state demand.

Good Lamb Weather
Elmer Triplett, Janesville, reports that his Duane-Jersey club is the "proud mother of 16 little pigs born April 19 and all are living."

"She is a fine mother to her pigs. The pig club work is very interesting," says Triplett. "Many men and others are hoping that the senior partners in the club contract will pay them a visit soon this spring."

Where Do You Want Your Car to Perform? On Paper or on the Road?

PERFORMANCE is now the popular theme in automobile advertising—particularly among the makers of moderately priced sixes.

Over-bold claims and counter claims are being hurled at the public to establish some sort of performance supremacy.

Manufacturers whose engineering staffs have not yet developed a compact, powerful, efficient motor, dwell on the bigness of their power plants.

To impress the layman they print statistics; and the engineer, who knows the tendencies of modern motor design, enjoys a smile.

Please forget the statistics—many a perpetual-motion machine performs beautifully on paper.

the primitive clays I used many years ago.

They do amazing things. Any woman who uses clay does herself injustice. Nothing else can so im-youth.

But there are better clays today.

French experts after 20 years of study, have perfected a new-type clay. It is well refined and delicate.

It brings manifold effects. That

Now, as a duty to my sex, I offer those clays to others. And I am taking time in a busy life to tell the facts about them.

Clay purges the skin of all that annoys it—the causes of sallowness, blackheads and blemishes. It con-

It brings the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. The result is that rosy glow which so amazes and delights. Many women in 30 minutes seem to drop ten years.

Clay firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores.

The ordinary clays and muddy clays do that. Then what fun you

EVER NEW STORY OF LINCOLN TOLD

Rotary Club Given New Light on Life of America's Hero.

History has yet to unfold an individual who embodies so many high characteristics as Abraham Lincoln asserted George F. Hambrecht, Madison, member of the state board of vocational education, speaking before the Madison Rotary Club noon Tuesday. Historians, he said, do not differ in that Lincoln was of the world's greatest men, preeminent in understanding what he was about, visualizing its effects upon his time and the future.

Our love for Lincoln is inspired because of his great sympathy and love for humanity—loved, intermingled with all of his other sterling qualities, coupled with courage and ability, which enabled him to accomplish splendid results in the upbuilding of American ideals," declared the speaker, a student for many years of the life of great president.

Lincoln's indomitable courage and ambition made him a leader among the scholars of his time. Schooling is only one avenue to education. Lincoln took the other road, built with many difficulties, by hard work, education, study of books and of culture, reached the coveted goal, designating him an educated man.

Lincoln was a deep investigator; he was among the most cautious of men, never retreating a step once taken; his early life gave him an all-round culture. He was self-reliant; he was strong in his character and language; he was fearless; he was brave, pointed out the speaker.

Help from Lincoln

"Many of who quote Lincoln, fail to get from him the real help he has to give," said Mr. Hambrecht. "It is not his opinion on a particular subject, not his wit and wisdom as expressed in his speeches, that speak that are his great contributions; it is from the temper with which he approached his problems, the methods by which he handled them, that we can learn most. His life is a call to self-training—a training of the mind until it can form sound, workable, trustworthy conclusions, training of the mind to practice and righteous training of the will until it can be counted on to back up the conclusions of the mind and heart. It is a call to openness of mind, willingness to learn.

"His method is a constant lesson in courtesy towards others, to a respect for their opinions, a good thing to be said of the older man's point of view as well as of yours that you no more see all the truth than he does, and that if what each of you see can be fused, a larger amount of truth will result. Above all, his method is a revelation of what man can make out of himself.

"Indeed, I am sometimes inclined to feel that the greatest service Lincoln has done this country was to demonstrate what could be made of a mind by passionate, persistent effort. What moral heights our nation would rise to if dealt with in perfect candor!"

A Municipal Golf Course

Golf is no longer an exclusive game. It is played by everybody. The open municipal courses in cities where they have been established have been patronized far beyond their capacity. Janesville's Riverside park should be capitalized in usefulness up to its very limit. It ought to be the beauty spot playground for everybody. It can be and among other attractions it will provide a natural golf course to be used by the public generally. A series of articles concerning the golf plans and experiences of other cities and the possibilities we have here at home in our park, is being printed daily in the Gazette. We believe they will be interesting to every person in the city. It is hoped that something very concrete may come out of the present desire of the public for a larger and better opportunity for utilization of the park.

In the 'round the world flight, it is a long time between jumps.

Jake Hamon, "Some Kidder."

We have been patiently waiting for some competent witness to swear to the truth about Jake Hamon. After Al Jennings declared he was going to "rock the nation" and testified about a million dollars Jake told him he had spent, and the nation remained unrocked, one of Jake's old oil friends, said that Jake "was always some kidder."

It appears likely that Hamon, a rough and ready, uncouth sort of person, lacking in education and refinement, and whose money was made in a hurry, did spend a lot of cash, said by one witness who was a partner of Jake's in the oil business, to have been $105,000, in order to be elected national committeeman. But after getting to Chicago in 1920, it does not appear that Jake cut much ice. He was for Wood at first and afterward to the end of the regular balloting for Lowden.

But we have been following the trail of the testimony which the Senate committee has been securing in order that Mr. Walsh might hitch the campaign of 1920 and the Teapot Dome oil leases in double harness. One witness declared he had heard that Jake had paid the Harding expenses, $25,000 and had given the money to William E. Miller for the purpose. Miller, under oath, said he had received no money and had not paid out $25,000 or any other sum for Harding's expenses of any kind. Another person said he heard Jake had told someone that he, Jake, had spent $400,000 for the campaign of 1920. But the man who handled his campaign said Jake had done nothing of the kind and had not even bought a meal. Al Jennings, the horse holder when trains were being rabbed, made his story so grotesque that no one believed the yarn. Even the committee blushed—for a single moment.

Jake wanted to shine in high political society. He had nothing else to offer but cash. He evidently told some raving good stories about the wads and seuds he threw into the hopper. His partner said Jake had plenty of oil property but not much cash. He knew nothing about a million or so Jake is said to have paid out.

So here we are, with some one telling some one else that Jake said he had given some money to some one who had told him that he had spent it for another person. This is called "evidence" by the senatorial committee. Much of it sounds like the stories of fabulous salaries paid to moving picture actresses which when testimony is given in court fade by several zeros.

The wet Mr. Blaine will have as a companion piece the very dry Mr. Huber. In this manner it is aimed to please everybody.

The Greek Republic.

Greece has taken another step toward a republican form of government by the result of the plebiscite when the people voted for the establishment of a republic. While there are yet many difficulties to encounter, especially from the opposition by the monarchial advocates and the propagandists which comes from the fact that George has not pleasantly relinquished his throne, still with watchful care the establishment of the republic may be an accomplished thing.

France, after the close of the career of Napoleon III, was for a long time the victim of monarchist plots of the two conflicting forces of the Bonapartists and the Orleanists, with the Bourbon pretenders bringing up the rear. Eventually worn out by waiting, the kingly hopefuls lost out completely with the people. So it may be in Greece.

The danger is not so much with the monarchist faction as it will be with quarrels among the ambitious in the republic itself. Men must sin; personal desires and ambitions in the will of the people. Unless that is done, Greece will become like one of the South American republics, when selfishness was the largest factor and revolution a natural state.

WASHINGTON'S POLICEWOMEN

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—The use of women on the police force of our cities, which was regarded as a somewhat doubtful experiment during the war, is now looked upon as success. Women, it has been found, are especially capable in handling cases of wayward girls and delinquent children, where preventive work is required. Through their influence police departments are gradually becoming socialized and a new and encouraging chapter is being developed in the history of the prevention of crime.

Over 300 municipalities throughout the country now employ policewomen, ranging in number from one or two in the case of the smaller towns to as many as thirty-five in big cities like New York and Chicago. Everywhere, their duties are much the same, but in some places they are given greater scope than in others.

In some cities, where the policewomen are scattered throughout various precincts, under the direction of men who are still inclined to resent them, they are permitted to handle nothing more important than clerical work or a telephone switchboard. On the other hand, in cities like Detroit and Washington they are organized most effectively into a Women's bureau, which acts as an individual unit, under the direction of a woman chief, who is responsible only to the police commissioner.

Washington offers an especially good illustration of a police department in the process of socialization. Here, the policewomen carry on the constructive and preventive work that is usually done by private philanthropic agencies in most cities. There are twenty women on the force. A certain number are assigned to patrol duty, while others are put on investigative and probation work. The former patrol the streets and all places where girls are likely to loiter, with fixed post duty at railway stations in order to apprehend runaway girls or questionable women and girls who might be using the stations for a convenience.

They look after stranded persons and psychiatric cases; they supervise the dance halls, cabarets, moving picture houses and other places of commercialized recreation, and they assist police men in securing evidence against commercialized women.

Two police-women are constantly assigned to detective duty in the retail stores of the city, which, unlike those of other cities, do not employ their own detectives. They proceed from store to store, on the lookout for shoplifters and pickpockets, sometimes investigating special cases. They have been particularly successful in apprehending women who were dishonestly using other women's charge accounts.

The other members of the bureau deal with the culprits after they have been apprehended. They investigate all cases of women and girls that are reported to the police; they secure physical and mental examinations so that the courts may make intelligent disposition of the cases that come up for attention, and they act as voluntary probation officers for first offenders who merit a chance to reform.

Experience has shown that there is much hope for first offenders if they can be kept off the court records and placed in a more favorable environment. So the police-women help them to secure vocational work, decent associates and healthy recreation that will give them the fullest means of wholesome self-expression. Often a girl's or boy's home life is to blame for delinquent habits, in which case the police-women call upon the parents and attempt to adjust the home difficulties. Work of this kind naturally calls for higher qualifications than are possessed by the average underpaid policeman, so that it is not surprising to find that most of the police-women of the Washington bureau are college graduates, who have specialized in psychology and social service work. They are appointed through a civil service competitive examination, which is by no means simple. Unlike the men, they are not chosen largely for their physical strength, although their special police training includes a knowledge of Ju Jitsu.

"We are taught how to overpower a troublesome prisoner," said a petite blond policewoman, "but we seldom, if ever, make use of the knowledge. It is always possible to call in the services of a policeman."

The social service of the bureau is greatly facilitated by the fact that Washington's House of Detention is contained in the same building and comes under the direction of the bureau's chief, Lt. Mina C. Van Winkle. All of the first offenders arrested either by police-women or policemen are brought here, where they can be thoroughly investigated and disposed of, usually without being taken into court. The more hardened criminals of both sexes are taken to the City jail.

When a boy or girl is brought to the House of Detention, the first thing that happens to him or her is a bath. An entire outfit of clean clothing is then presented to the visitor while his own clothing is carried hastily to the steam laundry, which is an important adjunct of the institution. After that, the investigation begins.

THE SLEEPING BABY.

Never an artist has caught it quite and never a painter can get it right. For a sleeping babe on trouble bed has a charm which a mortal brush can't spread. And touch of the glories of life divine which can't be told in a printed line.

You know by the smile on that little face there are angels watching that holy place, And you feel the spirit of wondrous love that has come to her from the heavens above; And your soul is stirred to its depths by these. The pink of her cheeks and her dimpled knees.

When our baby sleeps, I can stand and gaze So softly there on her counterpart; And I think I can hear the faint refrain Which the angels croon to a sleeping child, And to all life's hurts I am reconciled.

Sometimes I sit from the chair below, And into her room I steal, to know The gentle calm of that lovely scene Where all is gentle and all is clean; And I catch a glimpse of life's inner depths, And the beauties there, where the baby sleeps.

HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, APRIL 17, 1924.

Astrologers read this as a most uncertain day, although Mars and Saturn are in benevolent aspect in the morning, Venus and Neptune are adverse later.

It is a rule most threatening to mental and spiritual vision. All should beware of entrance to a quarrel.

Again war threatens the world and it will be still more precipitated, if the signs are rightly interpreted.

Labor troubles will be numerous and they will assume new aspects. It is foretold. Access of power for organized industry certainly is indicated through political channels.

Well, nothing but nor anything else could do it! There went them who had learned that to their cost! And, it seemed, there was another now who was yet to learn it! His teeth clamped suddenly together in a vicious snap, and suddenly he was on his feet. Plainly there came the rustle of foliage—it came again. He could pierce its direction at first. It might be an animal. No! The rustling ceased. Still one was running now on the road in the direction of the dock—but a long way off.

He lunged and tore his way through trees and undergrowth, and broke into the clear of the road. He raced madly along it. He could see nothing ahead, because of those intervening foliage-clad shrubs that had been too far enough to race over on his way to the house. Nothing! He drew up for a second and listened. Nothing! He sprang on again. A game of blindman's-buff—and he was blindfolded!

He came out into the clearing with the dock in sight. Again he stopped and listened. Still nothing!

He stopped. It was futile. He would only be playing into the hands of those who sought to grope further around in the darkness in what now could be but the most aimless fashion, robbed even a single possible objective. He could not search the island! There was nothing left to do but go aboard.

He stepped along the dock, and suddenly, as his eyes narrowed, his steels became non-existent, dead.

Captain Francis Newcombe dropped lightly from the yard to the dock.

On Road To Boneyard

"I have just finished a treatment of your wonderful remedy, and can say it has done wonders for me already. For the past five years I have been unable to eat any but the lightest food and that but sparingly, as any food caused me to bloat with gas. I was reduced to a skeleton of ninety pounds, and was on the road to the boneyard. A friend in Birmingham sent me a box of Dr. Doan's Wondercure, Remedy, which I took and I am sure it will entirely cure me of my trouble, judging from what it brought from me and the way I feel." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and relieves the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

Is a Bad Back Crippling You?

IT'S hard to do one's work when every day brings morning blemishes, throbbing backache, and a dull, tired feeling. If you suffer thus, look to your kidneys. Weak kidneys cause most rheumatism, and you are likely to have backaches, too, with dizziness and blurred eyesight. Don't risk neglect! Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Don'ts have helped thousands. Are endorsed here at home. Ask your neighbor!

A Case in Jamestown:

Wm. McDermott, 118 N. Terrace St., says: "A stitch took me in my back and a dull ache settled there. Mornings my back was lame and sore. My rest was broken for I had to get up nights to pass the kidney secretions. Doan's Pills from Sherrard's Drug Store regulated my kidneys and drove away the backache."

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their babies in any way, or on any subject which may be in the field of the doctor.

Mrs. E. C. writes: I take great pleasure in reading your column every night. I find it great to have someone who truly gives the good sound advice you do.

I am not writing this for adulation merely to express myself, which I cannot help after reading that Mr. Thressore and ten years seems so positive about marking babies. It is good to have any himself, then he would distract a mother could distract her child or not.

We have two little girls, the older 4, the baby just past 2. They are the pictures of health, and if ever a child should be marked it is our oldest daughter. I stayed in the hospital operating room while her father had a major operation on his spine, two months later the baby was born, watched the whole thing, and stayed right by his side all the time. I wish you could see her.

The youngest has a birth mark on her left elbow, which my superstitious husband and his family say resembles a berry and shows that I wished for berries. I can't remember it. All come, but do not refer to the other girl or let him know that you recognized her as your rival or were jealous of her.

SIR MUST CHOOSE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a woman thirty-five years old and have a dear lovable boy 16, who, I regret to say, got into drinking and has caused me a good deal of worry. I am married to my second husband and he wants the boy to go away and never come near him again. What shall I do? I love my husband, but my mother love is also strong.

ANXIOUS MOTHER: Unless your boy can be put in a school where his character will be watched, I think your duty is to stand by him. Probably your husband does not understand your love for the boy. I would suggest that you let your son entertain his friends at home. Serve a light lunch and make everything as pleasant as possible for him so that he will not be tempted to go away and get into bad company.

SHOULD SHE TAKE IN HER MOTHER-IN-LAW?

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married lady with a husband and six children, raising them every year of my life. My husband works at a terrible work and we live in a small rented house and have a hard time making a living. My husband's mother has always worked since the death of her husband, while she was able to cook and work, but now she is getting old and feeble and people want me to take care of her and keep her and take care of her.

We are not able and I don't think it is my duty. What do you think?

NOT A PROBLEM

It seems to me that even if you get along on less, which may seem to you impossible, that you ought to take your husband's advice. Of course, if there is some one else in her family better fitted to keep her and your husband feels as you do about the matter, the obligation should not fall on you entirely. If you expect good things in life or in the hereafter, it does seem to me that you must forgo your husband and trust in an omnipotent God to feed one more mouth and to care for a poor old lady who took care of herself as long as she possibly could.

WE GOT A WINDER

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married lady with a husband and six children, raising them every year of my life. My husband works at a terrible work and we live in a small rented house and have a hard time making a living. My husband's mother has always worked since the death of her husband, while she was able to cook and work, but now she is getting old and feeble and people want me to take care of her and keep her and take care of her.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

CITY GIRL IS THIMBLEMAKER
Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 17 and am living on a farm. I am good-looking and very popular, have been going with a boy for four months and I think very much of him. Another girl from another city came here about three months ago and he started going with her. Then he stopped coming to see me. Since he asked another girl if I was nice, he and I wonder if he would go back to him. That other girl has gone home now. He also told boys that he was going to come to see me again.

Please advise me what to do.

G. N. L.
I should think it would hurt your pride to have the boy come back, now that it is no longer possible for him to go with the other girl. Of course, if he means as much to you that he is willing to forfeit pride, let him overlook the prejudices which indicate all women are women.

WHY WOMEN LOOK 60 at 40

With dark circles under their eyes, yellow complexion, drawn expression, drooping shoulders, a haggard step, many women of forty have the appearance of women of sixty. In many cases this condition is caused by overwork or neglect of such warning symptoms, as headaches, backache, nervousness, dizziness, constipation, rheumatism, which indicate all women are women.

Women of forty who are still in good health and who are willing to take the necessary steps to keep them in good health will be young and attractive.

TODAY'S MARKET

GRAIN

Chicago—A sudden dip in strength today during the early dealings. Wet weather likely to delay receipts was largely responsible for the fall. The following offerings were reported made the market quickly responsive to purchases of a scattered sort. Initial quotations, which ranged from $4.15 to $4.25, were followed by a decided upturn all around.

Wheat and oats became firmer in strength with down. After opening 50¢ higher, May $4.15 to $4.15, and July $4.05 to $4.05, wheat prices sagged a little and then recovered and closed 10¢ higher. Oats started at a shade lower, to the advance, May $4.15 to $4.15; later there was a small but general upturn.

Higher quotations on hogs gave firmness to provisions.

BRINGING UP FATHER

By FRANK SINCLAIR
ATHLETICS at Indiana university are the best scholars among the men, a perusal of the grades by the Associated Press shows. The average grade for all varsity athletes for the past semester was 1.3550 credit points, for each hour of work taken. Thus, for students not engaged in athletics, 1.2020 points, with baseball players led the other athletes, with an average of 1.3400 credit points. Baseball came second and wrestling, swimmers, football men and track athletes followed in order. Athletes as a whole were nearly ten percent better in their studies than the other men at their studies. The figures show, it is pointed out, that the day of the "athletes" who cared only for his athletic power is over.

Wilson and Club
Get Into a Jam

Owing to a disagreement over terms and opponents, Tommy Wilson, Detroit, has declined to appear on the April 23 card of the local fight club. Wilson refuses to fight Everett, signed as substitute for Johnny Hoffman, claiming the new man is too light to give him a chance. The local club, however, passes this over with the remark that usually if is the lighter man who does the kicking. Wilson is sticking for more money, asking $500. He is asked to meet Hoffman at $400. He says he was promised $350 after he won on knockout on the last card, but Joe Burchfield of the club says he was told he would be given a chance at a little more money than the $30 he received for his previous showing. Wilson says he was promised a semi-windup go, but the boxing club management denied that. He has been given until Wednesday night to change his mind, otherwise another opponent will be found for Everett. It is stated.
